

On this fine night, the stars were bright and the wind was very still. Kayde lay quietly on his bed while his sister Sarah was sitting on the bedroom floor playing her flute. Kayde was very sad, as his mummy had just told him that he couldn't go to the circus with Sarah tomorrow. Kayde has an earache and his mum and dad don't want it to get any worse. His mum suggested that Kayde lay quietly in his bed until the ear gets better.

"I wish I felt better so I could go to the circus tomorrow," thought Kayde as he gazed out the window. Kayde had been looking forward to going to the circus for weeks. He couldn't understand why he had to be sick now.

Sarah stopped playing her flute and looked across at her brother. "Kayde looks so sad. I wish there was something I could do to help him feel better," she thought.

Suddenly out of nowhere, a cloud appeared. Kayde and Sarah jumped up in fright. Now this isn't a normal cloud you would see in the sky. This cloud had large eyes and a happy smile with a bright golden colour gleaming all around it.

“Who are you?” they shouted together.

“Don’t you recognise me?” it answered.

“No, not really” said Sarah.

“Why I’m Delta. I’m your Imagination” answered the cloud.

“Delta!” exclaimed the children.

“Yes I am with you all the time and you use me everyday,” he replied.

“You are?” asked Kayde.

“We do?” asked Sarah.

“Yes children. Would you like to come on a trip with me and learn some more?” asked Delta.

“Yes!” said Kayde immediately. Kayde seemed brighter and very excited as he looked across at his sister. Sarah paused for a moment and said “Well I don’t know. Kayde is sick and what about Mummy and Daddy? They will be up to tuck us into bed soon.”

“Don’t worry Sarah. Kayde will be fine and we will be back before bedtime,” answered the cloud.

Kayde and Sarah looked at each other. “How is this cloud called Delta going to show us more about itself?” they thought.

“There children, you are using me now,” said Delta with a big smile.

“What else can we use you for?” asked Sarah in her most grown up voice.

“I’ll take you on a journey that will show you how to use me in many ways,” said Delta. The children looked at each other and laughed. They had never heard of such a thing.

“Imagination, a cloud, I wonder what he can teach us?” they thought.
